Subject: APRIL 23 UPDATE FROM TY

This week we marked a month of the Hanford Site's essential mission-critical operations posture. We will remain in this posture for at least the next week. I have heard from many of you during this time; some find this incredibly difficult and others remain fully engaged with their friends, family and coworkers using new and innovative means. This situation affects us all differently. Remember what is really important in life, and continue to take care of yourselves and your family members.

For us, limited on-site work and telework will continue next week. Whether you are on site or working from home, thank you again for your commitment.

Stay safe, keep in touch and let us know if you have questions.
