Subject: SUMMER IS HERE

Thank you for the safe week conducting pre-field mobilization of construction projects, tumbleweed removal, groundwater sampling, essential mission-critical activities and more. Our Site remobilization activities remain in Phase 1 and will continue at a deliberate pace to maintain the health of the workforce, protect our community's health care system and avoid challenging a limited PPE supply.

This week brought us our first real warm weather. I feel like it snuck up on us this year, and we may not be acclimated to it. At work and at home, let's all please remember to guard against heat stress as we reacquaint ourselves with summer weather.

This summer, too, means adjusting and adapting to the global coronavirus pandemic. My weekends and holidays are different, too – not spending as much time with large groups of family and friends and wearing my bandana when I have to go out in public. Please continue to practice at home what we do here at work, to keep each other safe. We've been at this for three months now. It's certainly been challenging for us – all in different ways. It's also been rewarding to see the teamwork and creativity demonstrated to implement and adjust to the new controls, phased work approach and continued productivity while teleworking.

Thank you all for your persistence, and stay safe at work and at home.
